Introduction

This introduction is not part of the Wine Notice but is intended to indicate its general effect.

Purpose

This notice exempts from prerequisites for export under section 37 of the Wine Act 2003, wine produced in New Zealand that is carried by an airline leaving New Zealand for the purposes of consumption by passengers or crew during transit.

Background

The Wine Act 2003 places requirements on exporters of wine while allowing for an exemption to be given in specified circumstances including wine for consumption by a passenger or crew in transit by air or aircraft leaving New Zealand.

Guidance boxes are included within the Wine Notice for explanatory purposes. The guidance included in these boxes is for information only and has no legal effect.

Who should read this?

This Wine Notice should be read by airline companies carrying wine produced in New Zealand for the purpose of consumption during transit, and any wine company intending to sell New Zealand wine to an airline for the purpose of consumption during transit.

Why is this important?

An exemption from prerequisites for export under section 37 of the Wine Act will enable airlines to carry wine produced in New Zealand that is intended for consumption by passengers during transit without the need for an export permit.
